Dirr's Colloquial Egyptian Arabic Grammar

The Elementary Modern Standard Arabic Course (EMSA) is the premier introduction, for the English-speaking student, to the active written language of the contemporary Arab world. Expressly designed for the beginning student, the course is written by a team of Arabic language teachers consisting of native and non-native Arabic speakers, linguists and people whose primary interests are literature and allied areas. It implements an audio-lingual approach to language teaching while presenting the elements of Modern Standard Arabic as written and spoken in the contemporary Arab World. Volume 1 is complete in itself and presents a practical introduction to the writing system of Arabic and to its pronunciation, with reading and writing pronunciation drills. Thirty lessons provide a basic working knowledge of Arabic. Each lesson contains a text, a vocabulary, grammar and drills including oral and written comprehension passages. An Arabic-English glossary completes the volume. The course continues in Volume 2, which extends the knowledge of vocabulary, grammar and expression.

Over 500 pages: This is a basic Arabic Grammar book for absolute beginners. Ilm-us-sarf or word morphology is the first step in learning Arabic. It is the science of word origins. The word Sarf has many meanings but as applied to Arabic grammar, is defined as changing of a root word into different forms to create an intended meaning. As you will learn in this book, 99% of Arabic words start from a three-alphabet root word, which is then changed into different forms to create different meanings. These rotations of the root word are called تَفْرِيقَاتُ tas-reef or inflections. Prophet Sallallahu Alaihi Wa Sallam asked his Ummah to learn Arabic because it is the language of the Qur'an, it is his language and it is the language of the people of Jannah. Also, from the words of Imam Shaa-fai, knowledge is what is useful, not what is memorized.

This book is intended to help learners studying Arabic as a second language. The focus of the book is on common every day verbs used in our daily lives, with various example sentences, conjugation tables, and exercises, . It aims not only at improving grammar skills, but also comprehension and practical use of the Arabic language. So, in that sense, it is a comprehension and exercise book at the same time. For every verb, there is an explanatory part (the first page), providing the meaning in English, its form in past, present and imperative tenses, and some examples. Read this page to understand the general meaning of the verb and how it is used in context. The second part for each verb, provides the complete list of conjugation for each of the personal pronouns in Arabic, in the three tenses: past, present, and imperative. Read and study this page to familiarize yourself with verb conjugation in Arabic. It can also be used as a reference list, to check your conjugations when you attempt to write or form sentences on your own. The third part has some useful exercises, to help you practice Arabic verb conjugation, as well as improve your comprehension skills. The fourth part provides example of the verb from the holy Quran, including English translation. This will help you understand how verbs are used in the Quran, which is considered the highest level of eloquence in Arabic language; an eloquence not attained by even the most eloquent native Arabic speakers. In the next part of this book there are various exercises to practice verb conjugation and reinforce what you have already

All of the examples were written by a native speaker from Cairo and then translated into English. Care was given to provide a variety of forms for each verb (different persons, numbers, tenses, negative forms, etc.) in the examples. Following these are notes shedding more light on the verb's meaning and usage. All of the Arabic in the book appears in both Arabic script and its phonemic transcription. The Arabic is written with tashkeel (voweling) so that each word's pronunciation is clear. The phonemic transcription provides an even more accurate representation of the sounds of Egyptian Colloquial Arabic, which cannot always be represented by the Arabic script. It can also be helpful for learners who are not yet completely comfortable with Arabic script.

It is important for an English speaker to choose the most suitable way to learn Arabic verbs. If he or she aims to be a specialist, another book would be a better choice. If the goal is to learn useful verbs and the way that Arabs use them, this book is the right choice. You may ask is it worth it to spend time learning Arabic verbs with such a book? Yes. Arabic literature spans more than fourteen centuries and reflects the change of time. But among parts of the language that have remained almost the same, there are the verbs. Arabs still use the same verbs to express themselves for vital actions as they did in 600: to go, to come, to eat, to drink, to speak, to live, to die, etc. Verbs can thus be an entry point to explore the language of the past.

Every verb in Modern Standard Arabic can be grouped with other verbs sharing identical patterns of conjugation. These patterns (groups) are presented as 120 conjugation tables which show how to conjugate any verb in all persons, tenses, and moods. Each form is followed by its transcription (pronunciation) to make the tables user-friendly for learners at all levels. An index lists nearly 4,000 of Arabic's most common verbs grouped by table. This book can be used on its own, but also acts as an invaluable companion to the Lingualism Arabic Learner's Dictionary, the verb entries in which contain references to the conjugation tables. Note: This edition uses actual, common verbs in each table to represent conjugation patterns that apply to other verbs, as well.

the Persian/Arabic word or phrase has been found by matching the words in the original Persian/ Arabic text with the same word or phrase in the published English translation of that same text. This method differs from consulting Persian to English or Arabic to English dictionaries to find the English equivalent of a Persian or Arabic word, taking advantage of the translator's research and insight in selecting the most appropriate translation for a particular context and meaning. In cases where the selected work has been translated by Shoghi Effendi, this method also enables us to follow the standard set by the beloved Guardian in his translations of those works. Furthermore, this method enables one to find the translation of complete phrases not normally found in dictionaries; therefore, every attempt has been made to include such phrases and special terms in this collection. Although a relatively small number of texts has been used in preparing this collection, it is hoped that it will be useful in the general study of the Baha'i Writings in both Persian/Arabic and English.

This volume is devoted to the translation of Arabic tenses into English, and English tenses into Arabic. Using a corpus of 1,605 examples, it is remarkably exhaustive in its treatment of the categories and forms of both Standard Arabic and English tenses. As such, it represents a useful reference for translators and linguistics researchers. With 260 example sentences and their translations, the book will be very beneficial to teachers and students of Arabic-English and English-Arabic translation. The book is divided into eight chapters. The first presents the variety of Arabic that will be studied and explains why translation should be a text-oriented process. Chapter Two deals with the differences between tense and aspect in Arabic and English, respectively. Chapter Three proposes a model for translating Standard Arabic perfect verbs into English based on their contextual references. The fourth chapter shows the contextual clues that can assist a translator in selecting the proper English equivalents of Arabic imperfect verbs. Chapter Five deals with the translation of Arabic active participles into English. Translating Arabic passive participles into English is handled in Chapter Six. The seventh chapter tackles the translation of English simple and progressive tenses into Arabic. Chapter Eight provides an approach to the translation of English perfect
