We must address a number of issues about ourselves: - our faith - our personal value system - the implications of our being Christians - our talents - our spiritual gifts - our formal education - our abilities Building upon this exploration, we need to set goals (and priorities within those goals). Then we must set strategies for implementing these prioritized goals toward effective personal management.

Life with the Amish isn't always milking cows, shucking corn and baking apple pies. Travel alongside these eight Indiana youth/newlyweds on their two-week expedition deep in the mountains of Colorado. They encounter some very unexpected happenings that affect them profoundly. As recorded by their own pens – sometimes hilarious, sometimes hair-raising incidents – from the top of the Sears (Willis) Tower to the top of the Rockies. In their own words: Reality Strikes. Here I am in the mountains, miles from civilization Nobody knows where I am no road close by the foremost thing on my mind is my fellow campers. They don't have the slightest clue what swallowed me up! I half-awaken to some disgruntled sounds from David's tent Sometime later we're jerked awake by the loud POP of the pistol. The night is pitch black and makes me aware that I am quite alone Occasionally, I swivel my head around to check for eyes in the dark. If a bear smelled all this blood and fresh meat he'd probably think I owed him a handout Not for the fainthearted Thinking about taking a vacation in the mountains to get away from it all? Read this group's account to give you a sneak preview of what to expect. But then, you might not meet up with a TV reporter's microphone thrust at you – or realize the sun is setting and you are on the wrong side of the mountain, alone, with no clue in which direction camp is.
